To Whom It May Concern,

It's with well-earned respect that I confidently recommend NexGen Consultants for any Salesforce.com development or implementation. The success of any project depends on the ability of the team assembled, and the technical expertise, creativity, and problem-solving skills of the NexGen team is commendable.

Gretchen and Matt spent many hours understanding our business and presented us with solutions that were expertly implemented. We were able to easily adjust the agreement and the scope of our project as our understanding of Salesforce grew. Truly living up to their reputation of the Salesforce adoption leaders, many training hours for users and admins were included in the scope of the project leaving us with a feeling of independence and confidence.

Finally, I would like to commend the NexGen team on their ability to break large projects into groups, or Phases, allowing for a more focused experience. The resources at NexGen run deep, which allow their Designers and Project Managers access to expert information when needed.

We plan to continue to build on our instance of Salesforce, and are glad to have found a true partner.

Sincerely,

Danny Williams
